This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Prefatory Note

The first address catalogue of the graduates of the University of California was published by the University in September, 1899. The list, covering the period 1864-1899, included the names and addresses of the graduates from the regular four-year courses in the Berkeley departments. The graduates from the San Francisco departments and the holders of graduate degrees were omitted. Six years later, in November, 1905, a more comprehensive list, bound in cloth and containing 250 pages, was printed. This edition included the names and addresses of the graduates of the Berkeley departments and the lists of degree holders from the San Francisco departments, as well. Only graduates possessing the master and doctor degree were omitted. The third edition of the directory, paper bound and containing 270 pages, was published in May, 1911. The period covered was from 1864 to 1910. The names, with addresses, totaled about 6000 and included the holders of the regular degrees from the Berkeley colleges, from the graduate school, and from the San Francisco and Los Angeles departments.

The present Directory is the fourth edition and covers the period from 1864 to 1916. The first section of the book contains 13,950 names, with academic titles, occupations and addresses for all the holders of degrees from the University and the outlying departments thereof. In separated sections the bachelors, the masters, the doctors of philosophy, the juris doctors, and the others, are listed according to the year in which the degree was conferred. In addition, the graduates of the Medical School and the graduates of the outlying departments, viz., the California College of Pharmacy, the Hastings College of the Law, the College of Dentistry, the Los Angeles Medical Department, the California Veterinary College, are listed in class groups under the particular department. In the second section of the book all the graduates, for whom addresses are recorded in the Directory, are classified according to the town in which they reside. The third section of the book is an alphabetical index to all names appearing in the preceding sections. The reference is by means of page numbers. The statistical summaries, which appear in the section following the alphabetical index, show the distribution of the alumni by occupation, by locality (city, state and country), by class, and by department in the University. The summaries are the first of the kind compiled in connection with graduates of the University of California. The Addenda, in the final section, contains information received subsequent to the printing of the main section of the book.

The work of compiling the information in the present edition has been carried on since November, 1915. The data has been collected through a system of post-paid record blanks. Of the 13,165 blanks sent to the graduates of the University, 10,587 returns were received. For the unreported remainder, the class lists, address lists of graduate schools, city directories, professional directories, and telephone lists supplied the sources of information. The name of any person whose address could not be verified on direct authority is preceded by a (†) dagger. The addresses which are known to be erroneous have been omitted from the record.

The Directory shows all degrees conferred by the University in accordance with the records of the Board of Regents and the Faculties. In the arrangement by classes, the rule of the Faculties, "that all graduates of one calendar year, January 1 to December 31, shall be ranked as belonging to the so-called class of that year," has been followed.

The Central Council of the California Alumni Association has supervised the editorial management, which has been a part of the work of the Secretary's office. The action of the Board of Regents of the University, in contributing generously to the publication fund, is responsible for the edition in its present shape.

In 1853, the Reverend Henry Durant, a native of Massachusetts and a graduate of Yale College of 1827, landed in San Francisco. He came inspired with the mission of founding a university. In the year of his arrival, Mr. Durant, under the auspices of the Presbytery of San Francisco and of the Congregational Association of California, opened the "Contra Costa Academy" in Oakland. The name was shortly afterwards changed to "College School," in order to signify that the undertaking was only preparatory to the projected college, which was, in fact, incorporated in 1855 under the title of "College of California." A suitable site of four blocks extending northward from Twelfth street had been secured in Oakland. Rev. Samuel H. Willey, a graduate of Dartmouth College of 1845, who had come to California in 1849, and had constantly agitated the subject of founding a college, was appointed its business manager under the title of vice-president; no one was ever officially designated as president. In 1859 three professors—Henry Durant, Martin Kellogg, and I. H. Brayton—together with three instructors, were chosen as the initial faculty of the college. The instruction was formally begun in 1860, with a freshman class of eight students. Classes were graduated from 1864 to 1869, inclusive.

In 1856 a tract of one hundred and sixty acres, subsequently largely augmented by gift and purchase, five miles north of Oakland, was selected as the permanent home of the college; in 1860 this site was formally dedicated to the purposes of education; and in 1866, on the suggestion of Frederick Billings, one of the trustees of the college, the name of "Berkeley" was given to the prospective townsite.

From 1849 to 1868, the matter of establishing a University of California in one form or another was constantly agitated. The Constitutional Convention of 1849 inserted in the fundamental law explicit provisions looking to the eventual creation of a university "for the promotion of literature, the arts and sciences." In 1853 Congress gave the State forty-six thousand and eighty acres of land for a "seminary of learning." In 1862 the Morrill Act granted to the several States a quantity of public land, the interest on the proceeds of which should be "inviolably appropriated, by each State which may take and claim the benefit of this act, to the endowment, support and maintenance of at least one college where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, in such manner as the legislatures of the several states may respectively prescribe, in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life." The apportionment of this grant for California was one hundred and fifty thousand acres. In order to secure the endowment, an act was passed by the state legislature in 1866 to establish an Agricultural, Mining and Mechanical Arts College, and to provide a board of directors therefor. The directors provisionally selected a site of one hundred and sixty acres a little to the north of the Berkeley grounds of the College of California.

During the year 1867 a group of men, deeply interested in the intellectual advancement of California, including Rev. Dr. Horatio Stebbins, Professor Durant, Governor F. F. Low, John W. Dwinelle, and John B. Felton, sought to secure the establishment of an institution of broader scope than the projected State College of Agriculture, Mining and Mechanical Arts. The result of their efforts was the generous offer of the College of California to surrender to the State all its property in Oakland and its grounds in Berkeley on condition that the State should "forthwith organize and put into operation upon the site at Berkeley a University of California." This offer having been accepted, the Legislature passed an act organizing the University of California, which was signed by Governor H. H. Haight on March 23, 1868.

The Organic Act, or Charter, declared that the University was "created pursuant to the requirements of the Constitution, and in order to devote to the largest purpose of education the benefaction" of the congressional land grant of 1862. It "shall be called the University of California and shall be located on the grounds donated to the State by the College of California." It "shall have for its design to provide instruction and complete education in all the departments of science, literature, art, industrial and professional pursuits, and general education, and also special courses of instruction for the professions of agriculture, the mechanic arts, mining, military science, civil engineering, law, medicine, and commerce."

The University of California formally took over the work of instruction on September 23, 1869. During the construction of buildings at Berkeley, the North Hall and South Hall, the University occupied the college halls in Oakland. On July 16, 1873, when the first full four-year class was graduated, the commencement exercises were held at Berkeley and the University took formal possession of its new home.

The first appointees to the faculty included Professors Martin Kellogg, John Le Conte, and Joseph Le Conte. The first appointee to the presidency was Professor Durant. When in 1872 he resigned, owing to failing health, he was succeeded by President Daniel Coit Gilman.

President Gilman resigned in 1875 to accept the presidency of the new Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. He was followed by John Le Conte, who served until 1881. William T. Reid was then elected to the position and served until 1885. Edward S. Holden was then elected, with the understanding that he was to fill the presidency only until the completion of the Lick Observatory, when he was to assume the position of its director. Accordingly he retired in 1888 and was succeeded by Horace Davis, who served for two years. Thereafter Martin Kellogg was acting president until, in 1893, he was formally appointed to the office. Upon his resignation in 1899 he was succeeded by President Benjamin Ide Wheeler.

The Legislature in 1887 directed that no admission or tuition fees should be charged, and in 1870 that the University should be opened to women on terms of equality with men. This latter legislative provision was reinforced in 1879 by the express constitutional declaration that "no person shall be debarred admission to any of the collegiate departments of the University on account of sex."

Until 1887, the University depended for its revenue upon the income from its invested funds and upon biennial appropriations by the Legislature. Its invested capital consisted of money derived from the sale of seventy-two sections of land for a seminary of learning and ten sections for public buildings, both granted by Congress in 1853; from the sale of one hundred and fifty thousand acres granted under the Morrill Act of 1862; from the sale of salt and marsh lands granted by the Legislature; and from the sale of the College of California property in Oakland.

In 1887 the State Legislature rendered the income of the University more secure and permanent by providing for the annual levy of an ad valorem tax of one cent on each hundred dollars of taxable property in California. In 1897 the resources were further enlarged by a second act of the Legislature providing for the levy of an additional one cent on each one hundred dollars, and in 1909 a "three-cent tax" was established by the Legislature. In 1911, as an incident of an amendment to the Constitution which reorganized the tax system of the State, the Legislature substituted for the "three-cent tax" a bill appropriating for University support the sum of $760,770 for the year ending June 30, 1912, with provision for a regular increase of seven per cent per annum in this appropriation for three years thereafter, or until June 30, 1915.

In the early years of its history many attempts were made to segregate the departments of the University, especially to set the College of Agriculture off by itself, and many efforts were made to change the character of the governing body. In 1879 this agitation was put to rest by the constitutional convention, which inserted in the fundamental law of the State the declaration that "the University of California shall constitute a public trust, and its organization and government shall be perpetually continued in the form and character prescribed in the organic act creating the same, passed March 23, 1868, and the several acts amendatory thereof, subject only to such legislative control as may be necessary to insure compliance with the terms of its endowments and the proper investment of its funds."

Beginning in 1891, the University has constantly aimed to extend the benefits of its instruction in agriculture farther and farther beyond its own confines. In the year named the custom of holding Farmers' Institutes throughout the State was begun. So important had this work become that, in 1897, a new department was created, a Department of University Extension in Agriculture. Through these institutes, through bulletins, and through professional visits to farm, garden, orchard, and vineyard, the University constantly stands ready to render aid, advice, and instruction to relieve agricultural emergencies and solve agricultural problems in the State. The acquisition of the farm of seven hundred and seventy-nine acres at Davis, Yolo County, has greatly enlarged the scope of the University's work in agriculture. In 1915 a site was acquired for a Graduate School of Tropical Agriculture at Riverside.

The development of medical education has been greatly advanced by the gift of Mrs. Sophronia T. Hooper, in 1913, of property worth between one and two million dollars to endow the George Williams Hooper Foundation for Medical Research, and the giving by other friends of six hundred and fifteen thousand dollars to build a Teaching Hospital in San Francisco for the Medical School.

The Summer Session, attended by some five thousand students, has become an important feature of the University policy.

The University Extension division, likewise, has grown to large proportions. Nearly 6000 persons registered for class work and correspondence instruction during 1914-15; in addition, 19,000 have enrolled for correspondence instruction in agriculture. With these totals, the University will be found to give direct instruction to not less than 70,000 people.

In 1896, a proposition looking to a general building scheme was made by Mr. Bernard Maybeck, instructor in architectural drawing, and was introduced in the Board of Regents and fostered there by Regent J. B. Reinstein. The board voted to have prepared a programme "for a permanent and comprehensive plan to be open to general competition for a system of buildings to be erected on the grounds of the University of California at Berkeley." Before this resolve had been put into effective operation it came to the notice of Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, who was then considering the erection of a building at the University in memory of her husband, the late Senator George Hearst. Accordingly, Mrs. Hearst at once wrote to the board expressing her desire to promote the proposed competition and to defray all the expenses thereof. This offer was gratefully accepted.

Two competitions were held, a preliminary one at Antwerp, and a final one at San Francisco. The preliminary competition opened January 15 and closed July 1, 1898. Of one hundred and five plans presented eleven were selected by the jury for the final contest. The second contest, in San Francisco, resulted in the award of first prize to Monsieur Emile Benard of Paris; second prize, Messrs. Howells, Stokes and Hornbostel of New York; third prize, Messrs. D. Despradelle and Stephen Codman of Boston; fourth prize, Messrs. Howard and Cauldwell of New York; fifth prize, Messrs. Lord, Hewlett, and Hull of New York.

To adapt and carry out the Benard plan the Board of Regents appointed Mr. John Galen Howard supervising architect of the University. The first structure completed in execution of this plan was the Greek Theatre, the gift of William Randolph Hearst. The Greek Theatre is an open-air auditorium of unique beauty, lying in the hollow of the hills and surrounded with trees. It is used for great university occasions and for musical and dramatic representations. The second building to be completed in accordance with the Hearst Plan was California Hall, a solid granite structure, erected through appropriations made by the State Legislature. The third building in this scheme is the Hearst Memorial Mining building, the cornerstone of which was laid on November 19, 1902, and the formal opening celebrated on August 25, 1907. A fourth building, the University Library, provision for which was made in the will of the late Charles Franklin Doe of San Francisco, was first occupied in June, 1911. The Boalt Memorial Hall of Law, the fifth building of the series, was formally opened on April 28, 1911. This building is the gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Boalt, who gave $100,000 in memory of her husband, the late John H. Boalt of San Francisco, and of the lawyers of California, who gave an additional $50,000. Agriculture Hall, the sixth building of the series, was dedicated in November, 1912. The Sather Gate and bridge at the Telegraph avenue entrance to the campus, provided by the generosity of Mrs. Jane K. Sather, as a memorial to her husband, Peder Sather, was completed in 1910. As a memorial to Mrs. Sather herself, the Jane K. Sather Campanile, a bell-tower of white granite and marble, 302 feet in height, has been erected. The cost, $200,000, together with $25,000 for the "Sather Bells," was provided for by Mrs. Sather. A President's House and central heating station have likewise been erected.

The further development of the Phoebe A. Hearst Architectural Plan has been greatly advanced by the State bond issue of $1,800,000, secured to the University through the efforts of the alumni. Out of this fund have been erected Benjamin Ide Wheeler Hall, a general classroom building, and Hilgard Hall, a second unit in the agricultural group. This fund also supplies the means for the erection of a new chemistry building and for the completion of the University Library.

Locality Index

The names in this section, arranged by classes under the town of residence, represent the graduates for whom addresses are recorded in the preceding sections of the DIRECTORY. The unverified addresses are designated by the (†) dagger. The residence address, in preference to the business address, has been used throughout this section. In special instances, e. g., the graduate who is a teacher in one town, with a permanent residence in another town, a double entry has been made for the one individual. The woman graduate who is married appears in this section under the husband's name only.

Alphabetical Index

The names of all the graduates appearing in the preceding sections are classified alphabetically in the following pages. The names are listed irrespective of the department in which the individual was registered in the University and irrespective, also, of the year of graduation. The family name, in each instance, appears in bold face type in the center of the column; the given names are arranged alphabetically beneath the family name. The numerals, representing the year of graduation, appear at the left of the given name; the page number, at the right of the given name, represents the position in the book where the information relating to the particular name will be found. Many names appear twice in this section. The women, for example, who married subsequent to graduation, are listed under the maiden name and under the husband's name as well. In this case, the entry of the maiden name shows the husband's name in parentheses following the abbreviation, m.; besides, the entry under the husband's name includes, in parentheses, the maiden name, Likewise, in connection with the women who matriculated in the University under the maiden name and married prior to graduation, the double entry is made. The persons who received two or more degrees from one of the San Francisco or Los Angeles departments, or a degree from two or more of these departments, are given a separate entry in the instance of each degree. The word same, in italics, signifies the repetition of a name.

Distribution by Occupation

The distribution by occupation in the following list has been compiled according to the statement which each graduate included in the original information blank. The choice of occupation has been made at the direction and according to the preference of each individual. The group classified under Education covers persons engaged in all branches of the teaching profession. The active members of the legal profession are divided in two groups, viz: Judiciary and Law. The married women who did not express on the information blank a special occupation are classified in the Homemaker group. The graduates of May, 1916, are not distributed because so few may be classified according to occupation.
